Concerning the work of Mr. Fredric M. Blanchard who will soon appear in Barre as a benefit for the library, the Hon. A. W. Dana says: "Blanchard's great plays depend so little upon scenic effects that, in Mr. Blanchard's recitals, the audiences miss neither scenery nor costume. In some respects such a recital by a master is superior to a presentation by a theatrical company. Usually not more than one or two stars are found in a company, while in Mr. Blanchard's impersonations, a master recites the major portions of the plays, and, in turn, takes the parts of all the important characters."
